We don't mean to be rude, but...what happened to Simon Cowell?! "He doesn't look like himself anymore – people are wondering what's wrong with him, because his face looks like melting wax," a source says of the America's Got Talent judge, who was caught in an unflattering shot (right) during a Jan. 12 outing in London. The 63-year-old has admitted to going overboard with Botox and fillers, to the point that he "looked like something out of a horror film," he confessed. He also underwent a nonsurgical face-lift in 2018 and reportedly got veneers following his 2020 bike crash. "He's denied having full plastic surgery and even said he cut back on the non-invasive procedures, but no one is buying it," says the source. "Friends have warned him to stop doing whatever it is – because he's looking unrecognizable!"

J. LO: I WAS SUPPOSED TO KISS MADONNA!

ICONIC MOMENT!

It's one of the most famous moments in VMAs history: After performing "Like a Virgin" in honor of Madonna at the MTV Awards show in 2003, Britney Spears, 41, and Christina Aguilera, 42, each shared an on-stage smooch with the icon, 64. But according to Jennifer Lopez, she was supposed to be part of the threesome! "I was filming a movie in Canada, and we had met – me, [Madonna] and Britney – to do it at her home," J. Lo, 53, recently revealed. "And then I just couldn't get off the film. So they got Christina to do it. I'm a huge fan of Madonna. I always have been." Should Ben be worried?

HARRY & MEGHAN'S TV MANSION

In Touch has gotten a peek inside the palatial Montecito, Calif., estate where the Duke and Duchess of Sussex filmed their explosive six-episode Netflix docuseries, Harry & Meghan. The home boasts a gym, a theater, a bar, a game room, a pool, a guesthouse and a five-car garage (for all the couple's handlers, one might assume). The living room, which features a marble floor and three arched glass doors that open onto a covered terrace and a lush yard complete with chicken coops (just like Archie's!), is where their interviews were conducted. The master suite has a wraparound terrace – the views are to die for – while the remaining bedrooms have smaller terraces. It's not quite the palace, but it comes close!

The pop star, who lives in a Barcelona building across from the former soccer star's mom, Montserrat Bernabeu, set up a witch doll on her balcony and has reportedly been blasting her diss track, "BZRP Music Sessions #53." KYLE DEFENDS SHOCK SLIMDOWN

The diabetes-turned-weight-loss-drug Ozempic has taken Hollywood by storm, but Kyle Richards wants everyone to know she didn't use it to recently shed a ton of weight – 30 pounds in 3 months, to be exact, says a source. After showing off her fit figure at the People's Choice Awards in December, Internet trolls accused the Real Housewives of Beverly Hills star, 54, of taking the drug. "I have never tried Ozempic, and this is not from plastic surgery," Kylie clapped back. She admitted to having a breast reduction in May but denied any other artificial reasons that may have contributed to for her newly slimmed-down figure. So how did she drop so much weight so quickly? "A lot of sweat and discipline," says the source. "She shares pics of herself in the gym. She eats right. She didn't want a quick fix – and the results are truly amazing."

Brad & Ines: MOVING IN Together!

Brad Pitt has quietly listed his beloved $40 million mansion in LA's tony Los Feliz neighborhood — and it's no surprise. The star and his new girlfriend, Ines de Ramon, are moving in together! "Their relationship is progressing at lightning speed," a source tells In Touch. "They've already been pretty much living together — she stays at his place all the time. But if they're going to build a new life, they don't want to do it in the house where he lived with Angelina [Jolie]." The Babylon actor, 59, and the jewelry executive, 32, were first photographed together in December at a Bono concert in downtown LA.(Ines separated from her husband of three years, The Vampire Diaries actor Paul Wesley, 40, last spring.) "She and Brad are hot and heavy, no question about it," says a source. "Lately, they've been stepping out together in Hollywood more and more. There's never a dull moment when Brad and Ines are together. He finds her so refreshing. His friends love her, too. Now she just needs to file for divorce from Paul!"

On Jan. 17 – eight months after Naomi Judd died by suicide in her Leiper's Fork, Tenn., home – the full police evidence file on her death was unsealed by Tennessee's Williamson County Sheriff's Office. Included were photos revealing the tragic scene in the singer's bedroom and an image of the Post-It note on which the singer wrote a short, heartbreaking suicide note targeting her daughter: "Do not let Wy come to my funeral," it read, the word "not" underlined. "She's mentally ill." After months of mourning, old wounds were ripped open. "The note has shaken Wynonna to her core," a source tells In Touch. "She's been inconsolable and reliving the tragic event all over again. Naomi's death – and the note – have torn this family apart."

ELLE & MAX: IT'S OVER!

Was it the age gap? Elle Fanning and boyfriend Max Minghella, who first connected on the set of 2018's Teen Spirit when she was 20 and he was 32, have called it quits. "The age difference was part of the problem," a source close to Elle tells In Touch, "but also she didn't like his friends. It made things awkward. Elle and Max didn't even spend New Year's Eve together." Despite the fact that Elle has unfollowed Max on Instagram, "the split isn't nasty," insists the source. "Max just felt caught in the middle between his friends and Elle, and he hit a wall."

Idaho College Killer

INSIDE THE MIND OF A MADMAN

How the slayings of four students was triggered by a secret obsession and a twisted desire to be famous

HIS VICTIMS

TRAGICALLY KILLED
Forensic psychiatrist Carole Lieberman believes Kohberger will plead not guilty to the murders of Kaylee, Madison (on Kaylee's shoulders), Xana and Ethan "because he's still under the illusion that he can outsmart everyone."

t was a typical Saturday night in the small, tight-knit college town of Moscow, Idaho. University of Idaho student Xana Kernodle, 20, and her boyfriend, Ethan Chapin, 20, went to a party at the Sigma Chi fraternity house before returning around 1:45 a.m. on Nov. 13 to the three-level off-campus rental home Xana shared with a few other students. Roommates Madison Mogen, 21, and Kaylee Goncalves, 21, went to a local bar and left around 1:30 a.m., stopping at a food truck before heading back to the house on King Road just before 2 a.m. But just a few hours later, they were all dead — victims of a killer who brutally stabbed them in their beds. According to Latah County Coroner Cathy Mabbutt, it was "such a horrific crime."

The town — and the victims' families — were left reeling as the killer remained on the loose. But on Dec. 30, nearly two months later, authorities finally had a suspect in custody. An FBI and police SWAT team raided the Pennsylvania home of Bryan Kohberger's parents and arrested the 28-year-old, a doctoral student in the justice and criminology department at Washington State University — which is less than 10 miles from the site of the killings — while he was home for the holidays. Details of how cops caught the alleged college killer, who's facing four counts of first-degree murder and one count of felony burglary, emerged with the release of his chilling arrest affidavit, giving the public its first glimpse into the mind of the madman and why he did it. And reports from Jan. 19 reveal Kohberger allegedly repeatedly messaged one of the victims on Instagram two weeks before the killings, sending more DMs after she didn't respond. He wrote, 'Hey, how are you?' but he did it again and again, reported one news outlet. An unnamed former staffer at the Mad Greek, a restaurant in Moscow where Madison and Xana worked, also revealed Kohberger came in at least twice. But it's believed Kohberger was messaging only Kaylee. "He is a broken soul, a pitiful human being," says her father, Steve Goncalves. "He's a little coward who had finally got caught running."

EARLY CLUES

For weeks, Moscow police were silent as they processed evidence they found at the blood-soaked crime scene and quietly conferred with the FBI. They also asked the community to send tips, including anything on a white Hyundai Elantra that had been spotted near the crime scene. The affidavit revealed far more: Video surveillance footage confirmed multiple sightings of the suspect's vehicle near the murder site between 3:29 a.m. and 4:20 a.m., when it exited the area "at a high rate of speed." The car also appeared in video footage from the nearby Washington State University campus in Pullman where Kohberger — who drove a white Hyundai Elantra, police confirmed — was enrolled.

There was also a secret eyewitness previously unknown to the public. Police weren't called to the King Road home until hours after they happened, leading many to believe the other two roommates who were home were sleeping. But the affidavit reveals that one of the women — who lived on the bottom floor and was not attacked — saw the suspect when she opened her door after hearing crying. She described a "figure clad in black clothing and a mask that covered the person's mouth and nose walking toward her, [someone] 5-foot-10 or taller, male, not very muscular, but athletically built with bushy eyebrows." It left her in a "frozen shock phase," she told police, who pulled Kohberger's driver license and realized he fit the description.

There's also DNA evidence. Though the murder weapon was not found, the killer left behind an empty knife sheath next to Madison and Kaylee's bodies. Police discovered male DNA on it that they matched to Kohberger's father based on trash they'd accessed outside his Pennsylvania home (see sidebar).

MORE DAMNING EVIDENCE

Kohberger was a Ph.D. student studying criminology. "He likely studied it for two opposite reasons. On the one hand, he was trying to learn how to calm the demons inside of him that were telling him to kill. On the other hand, he was trying to commit the perfect crime," forensic psychiatrist Carole Lieberman, M.D., who has not treated him, tells In Touch. Some even believe he murdered for fame, and that, as one police source says, "stalking and dominance turned him on." (When Bryan was 16, he allegedly posted online, "As I hug my family, I look into their faces, I see nothings...I am blank, I have no emotion [and can do] whatever I want with little remorse.")

But he was sloppy. On top of the evidence detailed in the arrest warrant, investigators searched his Washington apartment where they seized a computer tower, possible hair strands and a disposable glove, among other things. And on Jan. 19, reports citing sources close to the investigation confirmed Kohberger's now-deleted Instagram account followed all three female victims on Instagram. Kaylee's father even said that she'd told him she was being stalked.

Lieberman believes Kohberger's Instagram tracks lend credence to the theory that "he is an Incel," an involuntary celibate. "These are men who build up rage for years, as they are rejected by women who won't have sex with them or go out with them."

Not everyone rejected Kohberger — at least at first. Hayley Willette claims she went on a Tinder movie date with Kohberger seven years ago. Afterward, he invited himself into her apartment and "kept trying to touch me." As things got creepier, she excused herself to go use the bathroom, then pretended to throw up so he would leave, which he did.

Deja Mann, who went to high school with Kohberger, also recalls him being odd. "If he tried to flirt with a girl or anything, they'd get a weird feeling in their stomach. I had that feeling toward him, too. My instinct was creeper vibes, and I tried to keep my distance from him."

Tragically, Xana, Ethan, Madison and Kaylee seemingly couldn't escape his clutches. A preliminary hearing for Kohberger's trial is set for June — nearly eight months after the murders. Kaylee's father, Steve, vows he will be in court every day. "This guy is gonna have to look me in the eyes multiple times," he says, "and I'm going to be looking for the truth." ■

HOW HE WAS CAUGHT

DNA

Among the more than 100 pieces of evidence found at the Idaho crime scene was a knife sheath found on the bed near Madison Mogen. DNA under the snap of a knife sheath matched a sample taken from the trash at Kohberger's family home in Albrightsville, Pa.

WASHINGTON STATE UNIVERSITY

ODD BEHAVIOR

Cell phone records showed that Kohberger, who was a PhD student at nearby Washington State University, was near their home at least 12 times in the months leading up to the murder, after which a fellow student said he seemed "preoccupied."

PULLED OVER

Online sleuths noticed marks on Kohberger's wrists and hands in Indiana police bodycam video from a Dec. 15 stop on his drive with his father, Michael Kohberger, 67. Police pulled Kohberger over twice within minutes on I-70 in Hancock County outside Indianapolis for following too closely, officials said.

According to unsealed warrant documents regarding a search of his WSU campus apartment, investigators seized evidence including a black glove, multiple hair strands, a pillow with a "reddish/brown" stain and a sample collected from a "dark red spot."

‘Toxic’ An UNDER S

He was literally squirming in his seat. “Really? Oh god,” Andy Cohen groaned during a Jan. 15 interview with CNN’s Chris Wallace, after Andy was reminded he said he hoped Real Housewives of Salt Lake City star Jen Shah wouldn’t get jail time for defrauding people in a telemarketing scheme — even after she had pleaded guilty. “Anyway,” Andy said with a grimace, “wow, this is fun.”

It’s only getting worse. “His backpedaling was cringeworthy,” says a source, noting that the Bravo host’s later attempt to claim that his comments were taken out of context “just didn’t really hold water because he still said them. He’s getting some major backlash for sticking up for horrible behavior. At the same time, his other critics have become more vocal about how exploitative the Housewives shows are. He’s under siege.”

CREATING A MONSTER

One of his biggest critics is also one of the franchise’s most iconic stars: Bethenny Frankel. On her podcast, ReWives, the RHONY alum blasted the show Andy created as “toxic.” It’s “making a deal with the devil...it’s prostitution of sorts,” the outspoken Skinnygirl mogul, 52, said, adding that the show has “devolved” since she’s been on it and thrives on pitting women against women.

The supposed friends tried to hash out their differences on Andy’s talk show, Watch What Happens Live, in December. Andy, 54, “made it clear he doesn’t approve of her trashing the franchise because he thinks it’s hypocritical,” says the source. “But most fans just took her side."

And she's not his only critic. "Housewives stars like Carole Radziwill, Danielle Staub and Candiace Dillard have also had issues with him," says the source. "NeNe Leakes even called Andy a 'gaslighter' and accused him of blackballing her career."

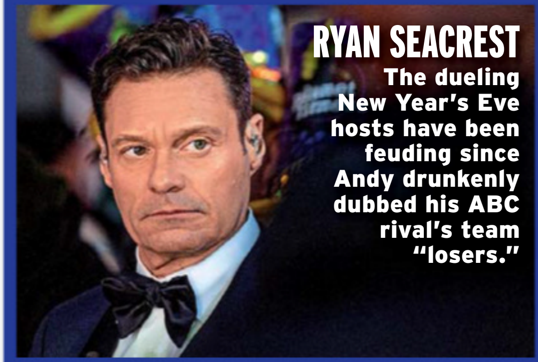
Other celebrities have shown their disapproval as well (see sidebar). "Fans are even calling for him to step down from moderating the reunion specials. This could turn into his 'Ellen DeGeneres Moment,'" the source adds, referring to how the talk show queen was vilified when former staffers and guests broke their silence about her nasty behind-the-scenes behavior. "Who knows what negative stories will come out?"

There could be a reckoning soon. "This Jen Shah mess has been a wake-up call for Andy," says the source. "He's not used to being in the hot seat. But he loves making his Bravolebrities squirm, so some say dragging him is poetic justice. He's the target now." ■

SOMEONE ALWAYS HAS A BEEF WITH HIM

KATHY GRIFFIN

The former Bravo star slammed Andy as "one of the worst bosses I ever had. Treated me like a dog. Deeply misogynistic."



RYAN SEACREST

The dueling New Year's Eve hosts have been feuding since Andy drunkenly dubbed his ABC rival's team "losers."

DEBRA WINGER

Andy has called the suffers-no-fools actress his "worst guest" because of her cryptic answers to his questions.

JILLIAN MICHAELS

"I did his show once, and it was a really awful experience," the personal trainer admits, adding that Andy was "extremely rude... condescending and unprofessional."

The Dolemite Is My Name star was visibly annoyed during a Watch What Happens Live interview when Andy tried to malign Tituss' co-star Eddie Murphy.

LADY GAGA GOES INTO HIDING

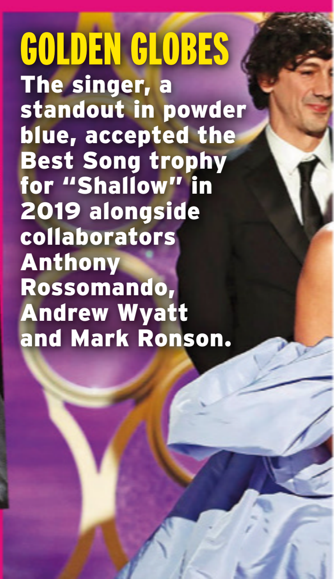
SHE USED TO BE EVERYWHERE!

VMAS

Time named it the top fashion statement of 2010 when Gaga showed up to the MTV VMAs wearing a meat dress designed by Franc Fernandez and styled by Nicola Formichetti.

OSCARS

Not many remember what won Best Picture in 2019, but everyone remembers Gaga's mesmerizing duet with Bradley Cooper.



GOLDEN GLOBES

The singer, a standout in powder blue, accepted the Best Song trophy for "Shallow" in 2019 alongside collaborators Anthony Rossomando, Andrew Wyatt and Mark Ronson.

Why the once ubiquitous star has been flying under the radar for months

Her absence was glaring. Despite her single from Top Gun: Maverick, "Hold My Hand," being nominated for Best Song, Lady Gaga was a no-show at the 80th Annual Golden Globe Awards on Jan. 10. (She lost, by the way, to "Naatu Naatu" from the Indian-Telugu drama RRR.) The usually omnipresent singer also hasn't posted on her Instagram since November, and only turned up on TikTok in December to give her Little Monsters a peek at her Christmas tree, then weeks later to re-create Jenna Ortega's popular dance scene from Wednesday.

Lady Gaga's shocking disappearance has led to countless conspiracy theories. "Her fans are trying to figure out what's up," says a source. "Some are convinced she's pregnant. Others contend she needs a break and is just spending quality time with her family and boyfriend [Michael Polansky]. Then there are those who think she's gearing up for a new album or tour announcement. Whatever the reason is, Lady Gaga seems to be in hiding."

HARROWING ORDEAL

Who can blame the 36-year-old star from bowing out of the spotlight? In February 2021, while she was in Italy filming House of Gucci (see sidebar), two of Lady Gaga's French bulldogs were kidnapped, and her dog walker was shot during the incident. (The stolen dogs were returned several days later by a woman who was subsequently charged in the crime along with four others. The man who pulled the trigger was sentenced to 21 years in prison.) "Gaga was rattled, obviously," says the source. "The last two years have been difficult for her. She once felt completely safe, but the kidnapping ordeal has made her feel more vulnerable and exposed. She's even installed a panic room in her home. So she's not as 'out there' as she used to be."

Career-wise, she's also seemed to slow down. She reportedly passed on a role in Brad Pitt's Bullet Train, citing a scheduling conflict. And while she's rumored to be playing Rocket Raccoon's love interest in Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 3, nothing has been confirmed. (The clever casting would reunite her with her A Star Is Born co-star and director, Bradley Cooper, who voices the animated character. "Gaga got mixed reviews for House of Gucci, so she's not jumping into anything and is being really selective these days when it comes to her next role," says the source.

ANOTHER THEORY

Of course, the real reason Gaga has gone into hiding could have to do with her singing career. "She has her fans in a tizzy — that may be the goal," notes the source. "She's created a lot of suspense around herself in recent months, perhaps because then when she does finally return to the spotlight, she'll do it with a bang. It never hurts to make 'em wait…" ■

ON SET

Tons of photos of Gaga filming House of Gucci were made available to the press in early 2021.

ON TOUR

Her Chromatica Ball stadium tour came to a disappointing end in September: The final date in Miami was canceled mid-show because of thunderstorms in the area!

LISA'S GIRLS

THE FIGHT For Graceland

As Lisa Marie Presley is laid to rest, her family is prepared to do whatever it takes to protect what's left of Elvis' legacy

A week after her sudden death following a cardiac arrest at age 54, Lisa Marie Presley has been laid to rest at the place she loved most: Graceland. "It is absolutely 100 percent mine, and it has always been mine," Lisa Marie Presley once said of her childhood home, the storied Memphis, Tenn., estate, where her father, Elvis, and son, Benjamin, who committed suicide at 27 in 2020, are also buried. "And when it is no longer mine, it will be my children's. And that is that."

Her wishes were clear. "The family has confirmed Graceland is going to her daughters," a source says of actress Riley Keough, 33, and twins Harper and Finley Lockwood, 14. But the historic mansion is more than just a family home: It's a tourist attraction and a music fans' pilgrimage site that generates roughly $10 million a year. "They're still grieving, but with all that money at stake, Riley and her grandmother, Priscilla, are also quietly gearing up to fight Lisa's ex, Michael Lockwood," adds the source. "There's a battle brewing for Graceland."

UNRESOLVED ISSUES

Lisa Marie's bitter divorce and custody battle with her ex-husband was still ongoing at the time of her death. "Michael could come after the estate for compensation he feels he's owed," a source says of the musician, who reportedly sought $40,000 in monthly child support (nearly 10 times the amount he was getting) and claimed to have gone nearly bankrupt due to legal fees since their 2016 split. "[Lisa] has put me in debt, defamed me, tried to take my children away from me," Michael, 61, alleged in court docs, adding that he believed his ex had much more income than he claimed, even though she herself famously lost most of her $100 million inheri-

HOME SWEET HOME

Living at Graceland were "some of the happiest moments in my life," said Lisa Marie, who occasionally stayed in the private upstairs living quarters when she was in town and spent every Christmas there.

tance (see box).

Graceland — that is, the original 13-acre grounds, Elvis' home and all of his personal effects — is pretty much all that's left. (Adjacent property, including a hotel and a shopping center, along with trademarks to the iconic singer's name and likeness, are owned by Elvis Presley Enterprises, which also manages daily operations of the main house.) "For Priscilla, it's about keeping Elvis' legacy in the family," the source says of the 77-year-old, who was wed to The King from 1967 to 1973, and remained close with him until his 1977 death. "And Michael's not blood, plain and simple."

Of course, Harper and Finley are — and Michael now has full custody. "Priscilla briefly became the twins' legal guardian in 2017, when their parents were trading nasty allegations against each other," says the source. "So it's possible she, Riley or even Lisa Marie's first husband, Danny Keough, who was living with Lisa and the kids at the time of her death and thinks of them as stepdaughters, might fight for custody."

So far, no one has made a move. "The most important thing to me... is to take care of my daughters," Michael said on Jan. 18. "Both of them have incredible spirit and they will carry our family's legacy on for the rest of their lives." Still, the Presleys are bracing themselves for a fight. "This," says the source, "could turn into a very nasty war." ■

LISA MARIE LOST ELVIS' FORTUNE

When Elvis died at 42 in 1977, he left Graceland and $100 million in a trust for his only child, who gained control of the inheritance on her 25th birthday in 1993. In 2005, she sold 85 percent of her stake in Elvis Presley Enterprises in exchange for $50 million, but by 2016, she had just $14,000 in cash following "an 11-year odyssey to financial ruin," she alleged in court docs as part of a 2018 lawsuit against her former business manager. (He countersued, blaming her spending habits.) By 2021, she claimed to be $16 million in debt, reportedly from unpaid taxes.

After an eight-year hiatus, The Real Housewives of Miami has been making up for lost time since its long-anticipated return in late 2021. And Season 5, which debuted on Peacock in December 2022, is "a roller-coaster ride of emotions," says Dr. Nicole Martin, 37, who joins original cast members Guerdy Abraira, 45, Lisa Hochstein, 40, Julia Lemigova, 50, Alexia Nepola, 55, and Larsa Pippen, 48 (along with friends Kiki Barth, Adriana de Moura and Marysol Patton), in the latest installment. Lisa's shocking 2022 split from her plastic surgeon husband Lenny, 56 (they announced their divorce last May after he left her for 27-year-old model Katharina Mazepa), is just one of many notable storylines. "There are twists and turns, unexpected feuds, and funny and sad moments," Nicole teases. "It's a little bit of everything." Here, Nicole and her co-stars talk to In Touch's Fortune Benatar about heartbreak and this season's drama queens.

Tell us about this season.

LH: I went into it thinking I had a good marriage, and halfway through filming, I was blindsided by Lenny wanting a divorce and leaving me for another woman. I never would've expected to go through that on a national platform.

AN: It's heartfelt and full of surprises.

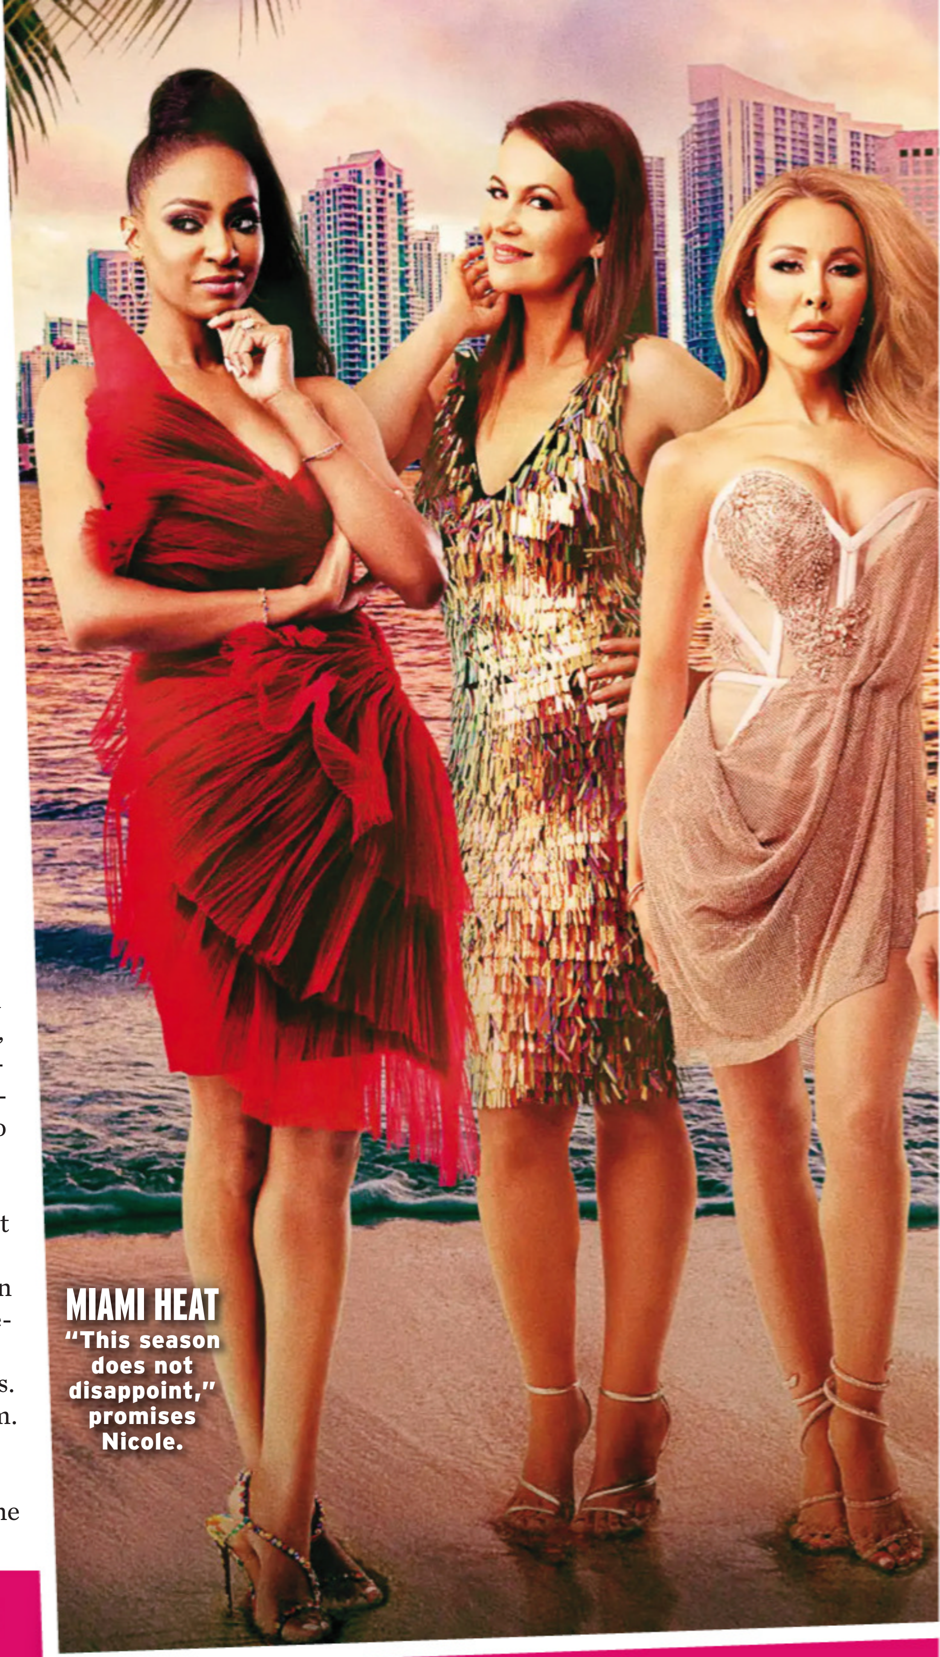
GA: I experienced so many different emotions. We fight hard and love hard.

JL: We are a true melting pot. I mean look at me — have you ever seen a Housewife milking a goat?

LP: We get deep into the friendships. Some are challenged, and new ones form.

Who brings the most drama?

LH: Larsa. If she has something to say, she will say it!



MIAMI HEAT
"This season does not disappoint," promises Nicole.

On Season 5: IT'S A ROLLER-COAS

InTouch with ... THE REAL HOUSEWIVES OF MIAMI

TUNE IN! New episodes of The Real Housewives of Miami stream Thursdays on Peacock.

AN: Adriana. You never know what her intentions are.
GA: Adriana, of course! There are a few big "lost in translation" moments that forced the group to pick sides.
LP: Adriana is always stirring the pot
JL: What happened to Lisa was a big one. Also, if you want to mess with me, I learned from my goats how to headbutt really well.
NM: Marysol always seems to be the origin of all the gossip. She's the fire starter, but Larsa doesn't fall very far behind.

Lisa, Lenny was caught on a hot mic talking about his plans to leave you. What has it been like watching that?
LH: That moment was a stab in the heart. It brings me back to the initial feeling of shock and sadness.

You had no idea?
LH: I certainly did not know about his ongoing relationship. Being a public figure, so many people are privy to your lifestyle. Women who have been after my husband led to the demise of my marriage.

Who's been the most supportive?
LH: All of the women have been supportive. I leaned on Larsa most.
LP: I've been by her side throughout the process. Breakups are never easy, but when you have kids, you learn to navigate things differently. You'll always be family, so you need to learn how to deal with them respectfully.

Larsa, you've been romantically linked to Marcus Jordan. Do you see yourself getting married again?
LP: I do. But dating in the public eye is challenging, because every time you talk to someone, there's all this added pressure! ■

Julia's Red Hot

Double-nominee Julia Garner wowed at the 28th Annual Critics Choice Awards on Jan. 15 with, as her makeup artist Hung Vanngo puts it, "a hint of glam with a striking red lip." To achieve the long-lasting matte finish, Vanngo used Chanel Le Crayon Lèvres Longwear Lip Pencil in Rouge Tendre all over the lips. "After applying the lip liner, I used a tissue and blotted her lips to take out all the moisture," tips Vanngo. "Then I applied Chanel Rouge Allure Velvet Luminous Matte Lip Colour in Ardente, blotted the lips for the second time, and applied another layer of lipstick to lock in the color." The result? The most perfectly painted pout of the night.
